Madison-Grant High School Fairmount, Indiana 46928 Volume VI 1976

Smiles sprang up from around every corner every single day this year. They were a way of life for everyone from freshmen to faculty. Smiles existed not only on faces, but in hearts. Smile instigators were infinite. When things weren't running smoothly at home or on the job, it was nice to be able to share smiles with friends and forget temporarily about troubles. Just the fact that friends were in existence was a happy thought. Teasing and joking, just plain messing around, and always being able to hear some distant laughter over all the other commotion constantly put a happy drift in the air. Just the idea of wearing jeans and being comfortable or even just seeing people casually attired lit up lots of smiling happy faces. A smile or two was also provoked by getting good grades or achieving highly in sports and being acknowledged for it. Being part of a successful season of any endeavor caused smiles. Ear to ear, grins were definitely there and each one carried a special message. A smiley happy message that wasn't to be forgotten 800n.

right: Friends are great to share things with. Jody Engle and Angie Ellingwood enjoy sharing smiles.

Tears dropped this past year in every shape, form, and fashion. These tears were caused by many diversified happenings. We students witnessed or were burdened with many perils, let downs, and dissappointments daily. Not that crying was a natural everyday occurrence, but it was a kind of sadness that was prevalent within someone's eyes at least every day. Grades prompted a portion of the cloudy faces. Though sheer effort was put forth, that big almost too important "A wasn't always there. Difficulty in understanding a lesson or assignment was also distressing to some. Just plain disgust from losing caused its share of the tears. Being defeated in the last game of the season was very hard to rationally cope with especially for seniors. Jealousy couldn't have successfully made it through the year without crushing someone's feelings, and forcing the tears to pour.

AND TEARS

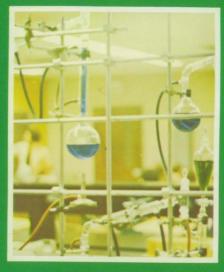

Of course, tears were sparked by the usual personality conflicts in both the halls and classrooms. Boredom with the monotonous studies and faces was depressing for some. But not all tears were of a sad, remorse nature. Some tears gushed from sheer joy of success. Being caught up by the excitement of a fast-moving close but victorious ballgame brought out a tear or two. Tears were sometimes welcomed, for after all, a world without challenges and conflicts would be a world without interest and controversy.

Happiness and sadness march on together hand in hand. Happiness, accompanied by smiles, and sadness, escorted by tears, were very much a part of our lives, not only at home and work but most importantly at school. We live by emotions. They tell us ideas about ourselves that would otherwise be bottled up inside us if not developed by outwardly expressed emotions. If smiles and tears had a monetary value, MGHS would be the wealthiest building in the vicinity. Smiles and tears are always on the loose, floating around and spreading like an epidemic. Here at M-G we care. We like to share our wealth with each other. This year at M-G smiles and tears were very dominant. We lived and shared smiles and tears in every form and in every situation imaginable. As we became involved with both friends and foes the smiles and tears poured. Academic accomplishments and failings prompted on still more smiles and tears. The gains and losses dealt with within the clubs and organizations along with the triumphs and defeats in all rounded out the flowing of smiles and tears. We will always remember the fun, mischief, excitement, friends, love, and most of all the smiles and tears that were experienced here at Madison-Grant, high school-1976.

GANGWAY

Dating isn't everything! It's good to take a break from being so heavily involved with that one certain person and find some friends. Girls can go out to "horse around" with girls. Guys can joke around and have a great time just with other guys.

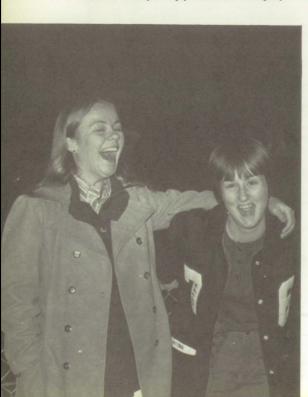

Looking for fun can be almost as fun as when you find it. There are many more personalities to get intangled with, more trouble to get into and more laughs to explode simply when there are more people around.

Dating isn't everything. More excitement can be found in a gang. Go out and find it!

above: A kiss is worth 1000 words. Just ask Scott and Teri.

What kind of mischief can Kathy Kimes and Kathy Young be getting into?

Dating Dilemmas!?!

Dating causes many frustrations such as loss of appetite, loss of sleep, loss of mind, and many other substantial difficulties. Dating causes pimples, or is it pimples cause dating? Some take dating dead serious. They're looking for a mate. Others look at dating more lightly; they simply want to play the field.

Dating definitely has its thrills, but its disasters can't be denied or defied. The first problem, whether it be considered thrill or disaster, pops up in the process of initially trying to get a date. No matter how tall, dark and handsome a guy may be, he is faced with, and undubiously worries over the possibility of being turned down. This rejection would not only jeopardize, it could stunt his social life. If guys could muster up enough strength and courage to ask a girl out, the majority of the ulcers and nervous breakdowns of males would cease to exist.

Thousands of girls but their eyelashes madly while they femininely stroll the school halls daily with high hopes that that certain guy will notice them, and maybe ask them out.

Guys know, or at least they should know when a girl is sweet on them, considering all their shy smiles and perfume.

John knew Mary would be at her locker right before sixth period. 2:02 p.m. was the exact time for execution of a master plan that had been premeditated for weeks in advance. Oh, she was an absolute angel. It was a fateful Friday when John casually at 2:02 p.m. approached Mary. He only fell once after tripping over a load of books that he dropped. After picking himself up off the floor, he was directly in front of her. His mouth opened to speak. Nothing came out. All he could do was barely smile as he tried to sneak by her and onto his next class. Maybe he would try again Monday.

Other than "fear", cost can complicate dating pleasures for males. Seeing a flick and then eating out at least once a week can be pretty expensive. While in a restaurant the girl always has the problem of what to order. Will he be offended if it's too cheap? A girl can always tell that something is wrong after she orders a complete sevencourse meal starting off with shrimp cocktail, and then her date selects crackers and a glass of ice water for his diet.

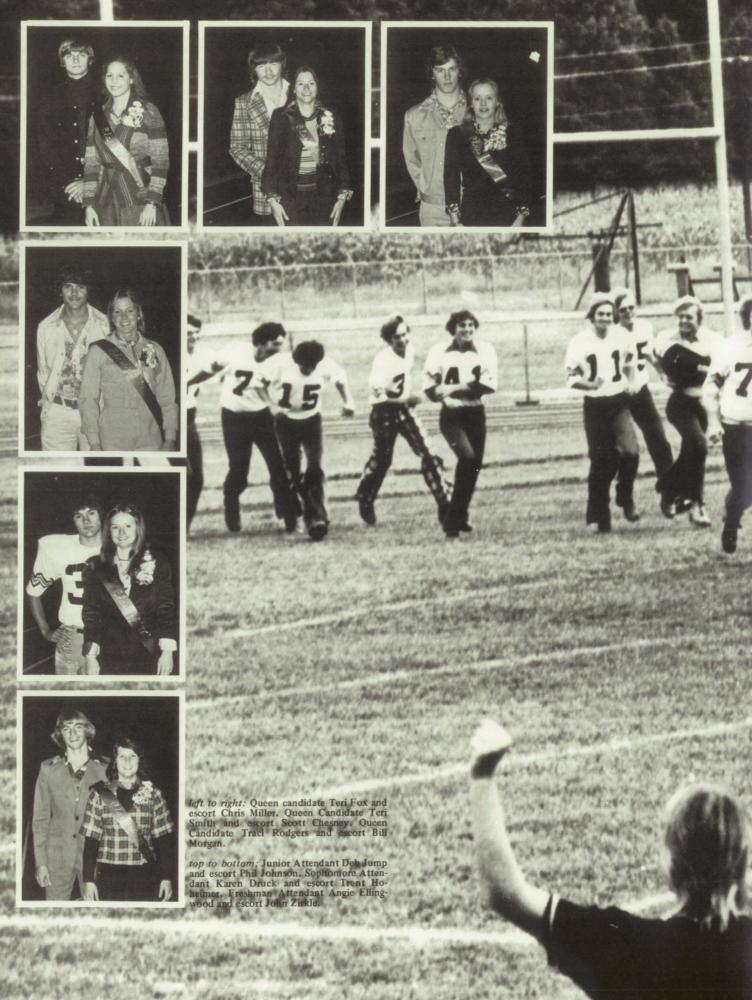

On occasion little fibs are conceived, developed and then presented to parents upon arriving home. These white lies range from where you were and who you were with, all the way to the last colorful detail of that great movie you really didn't see.

Sitting at home on a Friday or Saturday night is a depressing misery that many girls share. Guys at least have the opportunity to ask girls out. Society looks down on girls who ask guys out, even though some of the more aggressive girls do. Just think of the number of girls who watch the weekend late late shows accompanied only by a big bowl of fattening buttered popcorn.

Simply the ting-a-ling of the telephone triples the heartbeat and joyfully moistens the eyes of many lucky girls who are frightened by the thought of another lonely weekend. What a let down it can be when it's not for

Even though it can be a problem, going out on a date with someone you really like to be with can be very rewarding. Not only can dating be fun, it helps in extending your personality and outlook on life.

"Disastrous Dilemmas" are a very real possibility in the dating world, but, after all, imagine how dull life would be without a daring risk now and then, and remember at least 10 thousand people are sharing the same dating "growing pains" right along with you.

COMMING HOWE

Topping off the '75 Homecoming celebration, '74 Queen Julie Sexton crowns Traci Rodgers as the rest of the court watches.

Returning graduates, students, friends and followers gathered at a spirited Argyll Homecoming. Competition and enthusiasm sparked the annual event. Festivities broke out a week before the game when students from each class began planning the decoration of designated hallways. With the theme, "Catch the Brightest Stars at MGHS," the juniors were chosen as having the best decorated hallway. Thursday was "Jean Scene Day" with students costumed in their favorite school attirejeans. Reviving an old-time tradition, a bonfire was held Thursday night. Members of the football team addressed a crowd of family and friends before departing for the pre-game practice. Pyramid contests between classes, roasting marshmellows, yelling cheers, and parading through town were all a part of the night's festivities. Friday marked the traditional "Black and Gold Day." At the pep session, which was held at the football field, juniors proved their strength in Tug-of-War against the seniors, and sophomores "mopped up" the freshmen. Later that night alumni and other Argyll fans united to cheer on the football team; although in the end, the Peru Tigers were victorious. Half-time spotlighted the newly-crowned Homecoming Queen and her court. Finally a game dance featured the music of el". While old grads reminisced, S students created memories for Spirit became a more obvious factor at M-G this year as cheerleaders, student body, faculty and band united to take pride in our success. By showing lots of school spirit, Argyll fans compelled our athletes to strive for excellence.

Cheerleaders promoted school spirit by making signs, selling Argyll buttons, putting on skits at pep sessions, and having various sorts of class competitions. Students and faculty displayed their school spirit by participating in pep sessions and dressing up on "Spirit Days." Whether they were performing or yelling their own original cheers, the marching band did an excellent job at football games. The band also showed their spirit by entertaining fans at half-time of basketball games and by playing at pep sessions.

Argyll fans took pride in every accomplishment achieved both academic and athletic. This swelled pride pervaded the school the entire year and helped to make everyone feel not only proud but great to say "I'm from Madison-Grant!"

Sophs demonstrate their powers to the disgrace of the Frosh at the Homecoming pep session.

Schools stage characters. Although there are a multitude of these personalities in any school, M-G added a "finishing" touch by having a foreign exchange student, Juha (Vic) Noreila, 17, from Helsinki, Finland. Vic received a scholarship to study in the U.S. for eleven months through the Y.F.U. (Youth For Understanding).

During his stay in Indiana, Vic lived with the Jay Lee Smith family on a farm near Summitville.

Vic will have two more years of school to complete upon returning. In Finland students attend high school for eight years instead of four. After high school Vic plans to go to college and major in economics.

Downhill snow-skiing, listening to music and being with girls are some of Vic's favorite activities.

Students and faculty of M-G were glad to have Vic with them. We hope that we made his stay in a foreign country enjoyable, and that he gained a broader knowledge of life in the U.S.

reach out and clasp a helping hand

Being all alone in the fastmoving world is a very frightening thought. Having the companionship of friends makes the going{a lot easier. Never can too much importance be placed on the value of friendship. It is priceless. Being able to sit down and talk or just blurt out your feelings to someone and not say everything exactly right but still have the person to understand helps to provide great self-con-fidence for both parties involved. When you are downcast and thoroughly drained of spirit and strength, isn't it your best friend whom you draw strength from and mentally lifts you up? Sometimes all you need is that little push or "helping hand" of support and belief to overcome seemingly great obstacles in your life's course. Friends are people to identify with, be proud of, share special moments with, exchange goals with, and admire. But the best part is that friendship is a two-way street. You can't just take the support, strength, and courage from a friend. You also have to offer the same back. Being able just to laugh out loud until you cry with a friend is about the greatest feeling in the world. After being silly, it's wonderful to sit down and seriously converse about important things. Setting goals anyone can do, but being able to set realistic goals and then achieve them can be accomplished only by well thought out plans sometimes with the help of a friend. Experiencing the same situations can bring you and your friend closer. If united, you both can become stronger and conquer a difficulty together. Wasn't it nice and comforting to know that "someone else made it" too?

It is one mark of a friend that he makes you wish to be at your best while you are with him. Henry Van Dyke

Friendship renders prosperity more brilliant, while it lightens adversity by sharing it and makes its burden common.

it's cold out there

One of the big questions that has faced each of us—Why do people do what they do? No matter which rung of the social ladder you are situated on, there is always someone above you, and someone below you. Right away this causes problems—problems such as jealousy, hatred, mean and vicious acts, and rumors—from off the top of the list.

This, being a small school, makes matters worse. Of course, there are many close friends, but unfortunately there are many "best enemies." Everybody knows everybody elses business, and if they don't know it, it is always convenient to make it up.

The question of "Why do people do what they do?" is not confined to the corridors of M-G. If you would take time to look, vicious rumors and hateful glances are everywhere. It's hard to understand. Do people enjoy hurting others? Is it just a way of life, or are people trying to protect themselves?

Jealousy is a human characteristic. Someone will always have a meaner car or a sharper outfit than yours. The fact that these "Better" items exist threatens your existence. People with more attractive looks, better grades, prettier girlfriends, more athletic ability—ANYTHING better than yours puts an automatic threat on your conscience wellbeing.

How do you defend yourself? The answer is—the same way the people whom you threaten defend themselves against you. People start talking, things get vandalized, dirty looks and gestures fly, and others begin to get hurt. Did you hurt someone? Too bad, maybe he'll know better than to threaten you again.

Some people can be strong and cope with the hassle everyone gives them—some can't. It is those that can't that really get scrunched.

Maybe you'll think the next time before you act. No matter what you do, it's me and you against the world.

And it's cold out there.

Indiana State University housed approximately 1700 seniors for the 1975 sessions of Hoosier Girls' and Boys' State.

The American Legion and Auxiliary sponsored-event enabled the delegates to role-play and live for a week in a mock form of State government. Each of those attending was assigned to a city and county upon arrival and from there elected his officials who then governed the state.

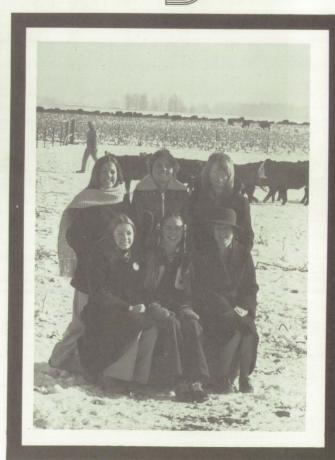

Learning to operate a voting machine and one hour semester credit to any college were two benefits of the attending delegates.

Jerri Terhune was voted into the office of Secretary of State, the third highest office. Aside from being the second girl in Grant county to ever receive one of the six state offices, she attended a session of the real Indiana Legislative body in January and met her counterpart official, the Secretary of State for Indiana.

Just ask Rob Anderson about the soaring price of no-lead gas. He'll know; that for sure.

Taking care of the money is only one of Liz Sherrier's many tedious tasks at Hackney's.

Life just didn't stop at 3:01 p.m. Time continued and so did we. Some people went home, turned on the TV, popped some corn, and relaxed. Others got home and dove immediately into a big stack of homework. And, of course, there were those ambitious, economy-conscious people who labored over an after-school job.

Jobs ranged from baby-sitting all the way to building houses. Working after school put a lot of responsibility on the shoulders of many students. It prepared them for life "after school".

Snowflake Holiday Queen Candidates were Alice Carpenter, Cindy Haisley, Sherri Petro, and Traci Rodgers. 1974 Queen Susie Johnson crowned Traci as queen.

A wintery scene with dangling snowflakes and glittering stars was the setting of the M-G cafetorium on December 5. "Snowflake Holiday" was chosen as the theme for the 1975 Christmas dance which is sponsored annually by M-G's Future Homemakers of America.

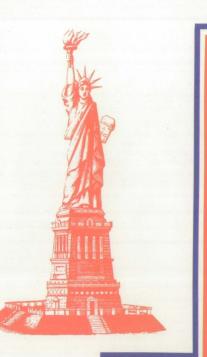

As couples entered the cafetorium, there were white arches lining the path. To create an illusion of being outside, the floor was sprinkled with patches of snow, and the walls were decorated with artificial trees and silver stars. With Christmas Day two days away Santa consented to loaning out his sleigh and reindeer. The old-fashioned sleigh was the setting for posed pictures which helped create an air of nostalgia. "Cassidy," a band from Gas City, entertained the guests with their original tunes and arrangements of popular songs.

At approximately 10:00 the mood of the dance became more serious. The mistress of ceremonies, Mrs. Donna Robinson, introduced each queen candidate. Finally after tense, nervous moments of anticipation, Traci Rodgers was crowned queen of the 1975 Snowflake Holiday.

"Plain ole learning" was the objective of our school year, but in no way was it plain or without emotion. Readin, Ritin', and Rithmetic ignited many sparks of both smiles and tears. Stiff scholastic competition was the initiator of smiles to those victorious and tears to those defeated defeated.

Not only did we broaden our knowledge, we learned of and lived many new emotions, made possible by school.

The English Department proved that experience counts as many improvements were made in the new phase elective program which moved into its second year.

One improvement was the increased volume of materials available to the students. Improvement was also made in scheduling as more students received classes for which they had signed up.

Courses such as Mythology, advanced speech, Emerging Woman, In Search of Identity, and Biographies and Autobiographies were added this year. They teamed up with 31 other courses that were also offered last year.

Only juniors and seniors were able to take the phase elective courses. Students and teachers continued to enjoy the change of classes offered by the nine-week program. Freshmen and sophomores took English 9 and English 10.

The English Department also offered Speech 9, communication skills, remedial reading and developmental reading.

Dedication pays off

Vocational School was available for students beginning their junior year of high school.

The students attended Madison-Grant for only half a day. For their vocational experience they received three credits per semester.

The vocational programs are in laboratory classes with the three hours spent in class.

The cooperative programs included one hour of class and three hours of work for which the student was paid at least state minimum salary. Thirty-four students were enrolled in the vocational program this year. They had the opportunity to get an education that was not offered at M-G. The potential vocational school students had to first be screened by the guidance officials and administration. Classes which were offered in Elwood and Marion provided the students with a good chance of getting a job. Eighty-five percent of M-G students obtained good job placement due to their vocational school experience.

Life realities tackled at M-G

Understanding yourself so you can get along with others was considered the topic of the social studies curriculum this year.

Afro-American studies, the only class added to the Social Studies Department, proved to be worthwhile. Students became aware of their prejudices against blacks, and they learned not necessarily to change these prejudices but how to fight them.

The class had several guest speakers which included an African, a local minister and a black student from Taylor University.

For two days during lunch, students in the class assumed the role of black slaves. If asked, they were to go to the end of the lunch line, move from a table or take up lunch trays.

Another class project was a student exchange with Marion High School. Six black students from Marion attended M-G for a day while six students from the Afro-American studies class visited Marion High.

Other social studies students studied government, current events, U.S. and world history, geography, economy, sociology, and psychology.

Marion High seniors talk to Mr. Avant's Afro-American studies class about life in a big school.

Science field integrates to meet students' needs

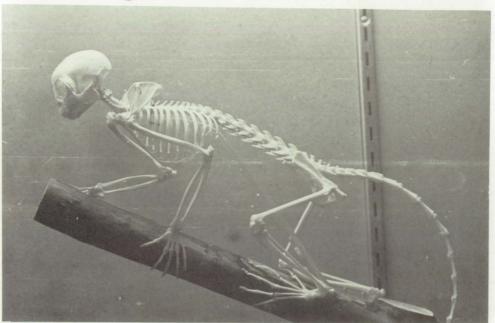

The Science Department at M-G offered the student many different opportunities this year as five new classes saddled up with biology, chemistry, physics, and advanced chemistry. The new classes offered were Integrated Science Biology, Integrated Science Physics, Integrated Science Environmental, and Advanced Biology.

Freshmen had a choice of taking either biology or four nine-week courses in I.S.C., I.S.B., I.S.P., and I.S.E. In the integrated science program students were acquainted with each area of science in order to be able to decide in their second year which area they might like to further their study.

Advanced biology was basically a lab class which was offered to sophomores, juniors, and seniors. The first nine weeks was devoted to microbiology and the last nine weeks to comparative anatomy where the students disected worms, crayfish, perch, frogs, and pigs.

Summing up the mathematics department

For freshman students seeking a medium between general math and Algebra I, a new class, pre-algebra, was offered by the Mathematics Department. The class is a two-year program and was designed for a slower pace in learning algebra. Mr. Bach, Mathematics Department head commented, "We hope that students enrolling in this class can cover a greater area in algebra and have more success in this endeavor than they might have in the regular algebra track."

The preferred class for sophomore students is geometry. As juniors, students may take Algebra II and trigonometry. In the students' final year trigonometry and analytical geometry are offered for academic students in math. Senior math is also offered for those students who need a refresher course in math before graduation.

Business students get first-hand glimpse

Business machines, a one-semester course for juniors and seniors, was added to the business curiculum this year. Students learned to operate duplicating equipment, transcribers, ten-key adding machines, full-key adding machines, electronic display and ten-key printing calculators.

In the office practice class, which is offered to seniors only, students were given on-the-job training as each student worked as a department secretary or an office girl for one period every

Students in the salesmanship class prepared window displays in the A-hallway display case. Each window display was evaluated by all the students in the sales class and the instructor.

Other courses available to students interested in business were general business, Typing I and II, Shorthand I and II, business math, record keeping, bookkeeping, and business law.

Industrial arts expands to meet greater needs

Additional courses to the Industrial Arts Department this year included architectural drafting and advanced 35mm photography.

Information valuable to the student as a potential home owner was provided in the architectural drafting class. Students developed house drawings such as floor plans, plot plans, wall sections, elevations and foundation.

Advanced 35mm photography covered push processing, ways of correcting errors in picture taking or film developing, composing in the camera, refined enlargement techniques, mounting prints, and producing good slides.

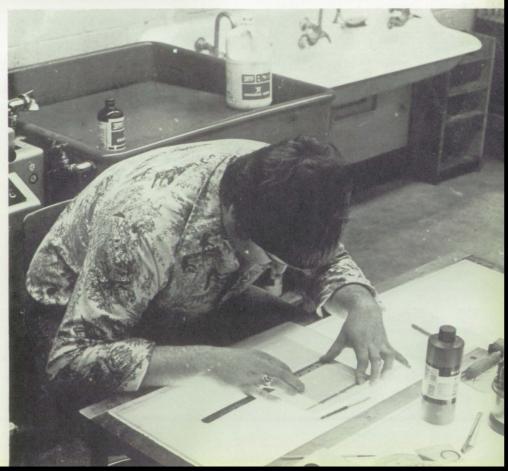

This past year the Industrial Arts Department offered 23 courses which all provided developmental experiences dealing with the materials, processes, products, occupations, and problems of every day living.

Enraptured students joined in on discussions of dating, personal hygiene, appearance, manners, and attitudes to get in touch with themselves and to institute their own system of personal values.

Inquisitive students made classroom observation of babies in different stages of development, and they studied the responsibilities, privileges and purposes of marriage and parenthood.

Ambitious students decorated rooms and furnished apartments.

Concerned students discovered how to manage their money and how to become alert and responsive consumers.

Creative students procured the ability to select and to make suitable, attractive clothing.

Enthusiastic students planned, purchased, and prepared complete and adequate meals.

These students are all home economics students. They developed attitudes, appreciation, understanding and abilities necessary for attempting to achieve happiness in personal and family living.

M-G farmers on the move

Eighty-one enthusiastic young men were enrolled in the self-supported Agriculture Department. Their main project was the 15-acre corn plot behind the school that they fully tended and received all profits. Other money makers for the guys were the sales of rat bait, garden seeds, calendars, tools, and candy, to mention a few. Under the direction of a new department head, Mr. Jeff Smith, the students participated in judging livestock and soils among stiff competition and did very well. Four of the Future Farmers of America and Mr. Smith went to Kansas City in November to a national FFA convention.

Farming always has been and always will be an important industry in our community. The Ag Department prepared young men to create their own farms, their own future.

Keeping a slim, trim, and well-built body, believe it or not, was on the minds of many students. M-G offered the perfect class for these physique minded body builders—physical education.

Physical education was a required course of one semester for all freshmen and sophomores. Ninth and tenth grade girls participated in tennis, track and field, volleyball, basketball, tumbling and gymnastics.

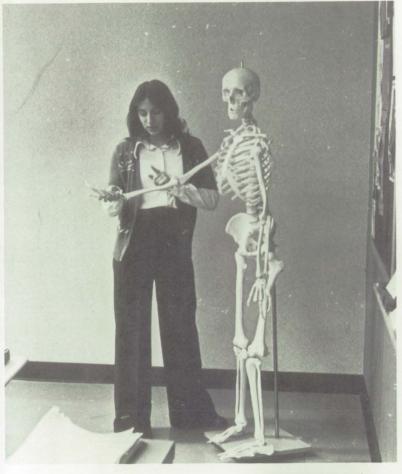

The ninth and tenth grade guys were active in units of volleyball, softball, dodge ball, paddle ball, gymnastics, tennis and golf.

A sixth period advanced P.E. course was offered to both girls and guys this year.

While working on the tumbling unit, the guys not only execute gymnastic stunts, they rock and roll.

New aspects to health covered by M-G left: Herman Jr. blushes as Donna Mathews tries to convince the class that "the wrist bone's connected to the arm bone."

below: Deana Holloway gives a demonstration on mouth to mouth resuscitation in health class with a baby.

This year's health classes were spending time on a trio of individual units working on clarifying values. "Sensitivity" material was intended to increase the students' awareness of other people's needs, feelings, and interests. "Consequences" put the emphasis on improving the individual's ability to predict the possible consequences of actions. "Points of View" involved learning to choose what to do in conflicts. The three approaches together prepared students to act considerately toward other people because they were able to take the role of the other.

Driver's education, a class under the health department, helped promote taking the role of the other driver with defensive driving.

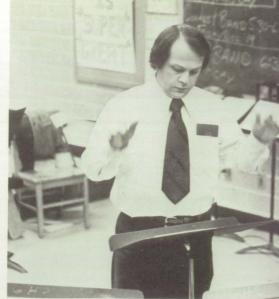

All M-G students 15 years of age or older had the opportunity to take driver's ed this past summer. One hundred ninety potential drivers reported to 55 hours of classroom work and 6 hours of actual driving under the supervision of trained instructors. Driver's ed was a useful class from which all those who took it could benefit.

Performing experiences provided

The M-G Music Department provides the college bound student with a good musical background. Not only do students learn in a classroom situation, they are also subject to the experience of performing in public.

Along with the freshmen choir, male choir, girls' choir, and concert choir, Mrs. Walton, choral director, taught music appreciation, and theory.

In the choral classes students developed their chest voices, breath control, and their sight-singing abilities.

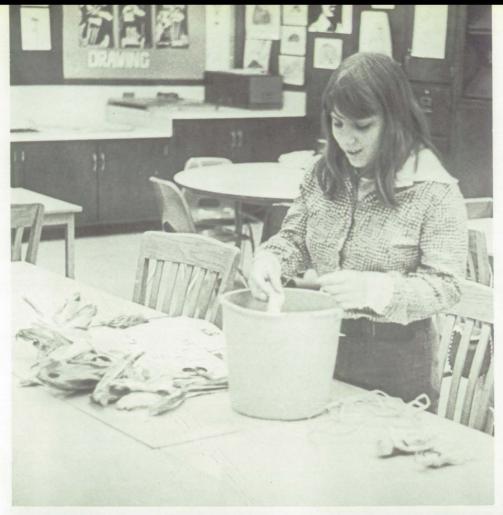

Students studied 19th century composers and their music in the music appreciation course. As a creative project the class created and hung on the wall a bicentennial music time line. Music theory prepared the students in constructing chords and analyzing composition. Appreciation and theory classes took a field trip to Ball State University to observe an electronic music class and also to take in an opera.

Band classes were offered 5th and 6th periods each day. Donald Lamb, band instructor, conducted the M-G band to its best year in Argyll history. Both classes combined to form the concert band and worked up numbers that were performed in December and February concerts and the April Band Spectacular.

In band class the students augmented their knowledge and execution of instrument playing techniques.

Greg Chesney and Steve Wilson belt out a tune in fifth period band class.

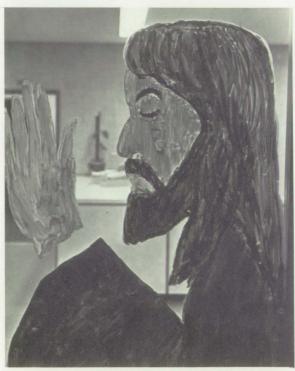

Artists advance and prosper

Profit was in the "picture" for many art students. With instruction and advice from Mrs. McConnel, the students fashioned quaint cornhusk dolls which sell in stores at around $10.00. They experimented with more metals and also created posters that they could hang in their bedrooms from brayer painting techniques.

An advanced drawing class, available to students with Drawing I as a pre-requisite, was added to the art curriculum. Students studied more in depth on styles and procedures of drawing.

Hours of work were spent producing a finished product in the various art classes. Janet Lloyd is busy designing a cornhusk doll.

Jesus, painted on an office window by an art student, kept watch of the school during Christmas time.

Basic Art students, Dawn Dixon, Priscilla Mack, Leanne Stookey, Lynn Frickey and Lynell Kimes try a hand at macrame.

We needed people, friends and enemies. Smiles and tears ached to be shared. Students, faculty, staff, and administration united and produced a very meaningful school year. Seniors ran around with people they had known for at least twelve years with the thought in the back of their minds of maybe never seeing those friends again after this year. You could always come to school and share your innermost feelings, for you had a friend.

Senior boys' booster club members get fired up at one of the home basketball games.

It's really rough being a senior ...

Robby Joe Anderson Tamblyn Kay Bailey Baker

What-it's rough being a senior? You may not believe it, but just consider the possibilities of the problems that could develop: being the lone supporter of pink and green as our graduation colors: being the first senior to wear red rubber boots to school at mother's request; being the first senior to still be taking Speech 9. And how about flunking that Government test, or losing your wallet under the bleachers at the sectional, and having to confront an official about it. Or what about the time you tried to tell an "authority figure" in the hall during class that you really didn't need a pass, anyway.

One thing that we will never forget is the cafeteria, under the direction of Mr. Wright. All the food fights, disputes over custody of the chairs, and mainly those flights we took daily around the corner, down the stairs, and finally down the straightaway toward the french fries. Speaking of french fries, imagine the humiliation of discovering that you have gained fifteen pounds after you ordered your cap and gown for graduation!

Do any of these sound familiar? They may all seem like exaggerations, and a few of them obviously are . . . but being a senior at M-G in 1976 can indeed bring about some traumas that hopefully never will be forgotten. They will be cherished in our hearts for years to come.

Then that tradition which has never received a name fulfilled itself. High school is generally made up of traditions: musicals, junior-senior proms, tourneys and sectionals, and homecomings. And yet, one of the most important traditions never remembered-that of be coming one of those idolized "big kids." Some of the most lasting impressions ever made on elementary a unior high mudents are made by the high school seniors whom they come in contact with. Now suddenly, we are those 'big kids." Suddenly, and almost without notice, we are the ones who the young students idolize and look to as if we were one of the Seven Wonders of the World.

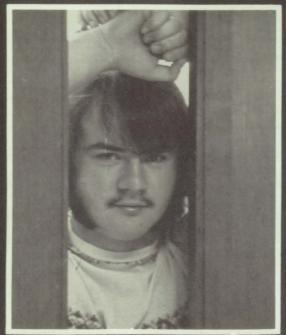

As car senior year passed, wondered if we were worthy of all the attention and fame that we have gained. did we really live up to the expectations of those kids at the ball games, classrooms, or school busses? Juniors begin to wonder

This was the year when the juniors began to think about their future. For some college is a major part of their future. The PSAT and SAT tests were taken to help provide scholarships and college placement. Each junior had some special achievement wanted in life; a couple of years ago this seemed in the far off future but now the future is closer than before. The juniors had begun to wonder. Elective English can be fun

Juniors were introduced to a new system of English classes this year. Students had their choice of areas in which to study with subjects ranging from "Hotline on Sports" to advanced Grammar. The classes were a big change in students' study of English. They no longer were required to sit through lectures and listen to subjects that displeased them. They were now able to study subjects which interested them. The phase-elective system for English was again a success.

The freshmen were introduced to a new type of science instruction. The science areas were divided into four classes which the student was required to take, ISP (physics), ISB (biology), ISE (ecology) and ISC (Chemistry). The purpose was to introduce each freshman to all the areas of science, to help in the decision of which class to take during the sophomore year. Students find responsibilities

When students opened another door in education and life, many were greatly surprised. More and greater responsibilities were confronted, some successfully, and others not. Without the bus drivers, many students probably couldn't have participated in some of their extracurricular activities, such as ball games, speech meets, band concerts, or field trips. Mrs. Todd also deserves commendation for her fine job as study hall supervisor this year.

Forty-five years in the public schools of Indiana is a long time but it has been an enjoyable experience. I spent the first 12 years (1931-43) as a teacher and then gave the following 2 years to the United States Army (1943-45).

After returning from the military service, I was a principal from 1945 - 1956. The last 20 years have been in the super-

Yes, times have changed in those 45 years and there have been many difficult problems to face. However, if I were to have my life to live over, I would want to spend it working in the field of education for the youth of our great nation.

Officials administrate well at M-G

Administrating a high school is a decision making job. It requires the ability to handle various types of situations. Our principal, Merrill Holloway, and assistant principal, Paul Davis, displayed these needed qualities this year. These men worked hard to make MGHS one of the best high schools in the area.

Mr. Max Ayres did a fine job managing maintenance and upkeep of our school building.

Traveling from school to school in our district was Mrs. Margaret Lewis, the school nurse.

Answering the phone, typing letters, and helping Mr. Holloway and Mr. Davis were some of the duties of the secretaries in our office. They were a necessary unit in our school's business.

People had to cooperate and get along with other people. Too much horseing around and personality conflicts, on the other sonality conflicts, on the other hand, were two of the obstacles our organizations hurdled. Smiles and tears called each meeting to order, carried on with business, and then adjourned until the next gathering. Did the smiles and tears end there? Get real—smiles and tears were always there in the background United We ways there in the background.

NHS is more than scholarship

Gaining membership in the National Honor Society requires more than scholastic achievement. Students with a Baverage are submitted to a faculty committee, where they are rated on scholarship, leadership, and service. Qualification is open to 15% of the senior class and 10% of the junior class. Two formal inductions were conducted during the year.

Lisa Keefer is tapped by Chris Warren.

Mrs. Herring tells new NHS members plans for the induction.

Council purchases sign

A four-year dream of the Student Council became a reality this year by the purchase and assembly of the activity sign which is now in front of the school.

Another item brought to M-G by the Student Council was the Christmas tree in the front hallway and the Christmas music during lunch.

Speech team has best year

An objective of speech team was to develop good public speaking techniques. In order to do so speech team members participated in area tournaments and were awarded National Forensic League points.

Participants were judged on facial expression, voice intonation, gestures, body expression, and selection of material.

Categories to compete in were Dramatics, Dramatic Duo, Impromptu, Poetry, Original Oratory, Humorous, Extemporaneous, Oratorical Declamation, Radio, and Discussion.

French Club officers plan for the Christmas party.

French Club expands

This year's French Club, sponsored by Mrs. Overman, is one of the largest MGHS has ever had with approximately fifty members. The Christmas party was the main event of the year in which French traditions were practiced. Among the Christmas festivities in France is finding a king and a queen of the party. A bean is baked in one of the many pastries. Each person receives a pastry and the one who finds the bean becomes the king or queen then the royalty selects his partner. Another tradition is the baking of the yule log. After the party the club went French Christmas caroling.

French Club is designed to help the French students practice their French conversations and traditions.

New event sponsored by Spanish Club

Spanish Club sponsored a new event this spring. A Bike-a-thon opened to teams from all M-G clubs was a big success.

Spanish Club members also took part in the annual Spanish-French Christmas party. They had tacos and other foreign tastie treats.

A trip to a Spanish restaurant was another activity of the club.

Health Careers hold auction for needy family

Health Careers Club enabled an unfortunate family to have a happier Christmas this year. A collection was taken everyday at lunch and an auction was conducted as money-making projects. Mr. Sharp, acting as auctioneer, auctioned off items such as a playboy calendar from the English department and a knee-tickler from Mr. Avant. Approximately $435 was collected from the student body.

Camera Club, sponsored by Mr. Nesbitt, is designed for students interested in photography. Besides taking a variety of pictures, the Camera Club had a series of discussions on how to take pictures.

The Future Farmers of America is a national organization of, by, and for students enrolled in vocational agriculture under the provision of the National Vocational Education Act. In 1972 the FFA had more than 430,000 active members in 7,857 chapters located in the nation's public schools.

On April 10, 1936, Fairmount (which is now Madison-Grant) became the 62nd chapter to be chartered in the state of Indiana.

Today our chapter consists of eightyone members and is still growing under the direction of Mr. Smith.

Candy proves profitable for FHA

Loading a bus with sleepy-eyed girls at 6:00 in the morning was one of the exciting ordeals of Future Homemakers of America.

Future Homemakers of America or FHA is a group of girls who learn to work together to achieve goals such as the Christmas Ball, a formal dance sponsored by FHA for the entire student body and faculty to attend. The girls worked on various committees to plan everything from decorations to food for this event.

During basketball season FHA ran the coat check and held the athletic banquet at the end of the season, for male and female athletics.

Each month six girls were chosen to make favors for the local nursing home.

Selling candy was the big money making project of the year; prizes were awarded to the top ten sellers.

Campus Life sponsors skating party

Campus Life? What is it?? It's crowding 50-70 kids into small living rooms, falling down at roller skating rinks, seeing who can eat the most hamburgers, talking out problems, and talking about God. Campus Life, sponsored by Mr. Earnest and aided by a Taylor University staff, was one of the largest groups that M-G has ever had.

Campus Life was very active this year with such activities as the Burger Bash, Scream in the Dark, the Roller Skating Party, and the Spring Fling. One could always tell who was in Campus Life on the day after the roller skating parties! It was a treat for anyone who went just to see Mr. Earnest on roller skates!

Along with all of the fun, Campus Life can also be serious while discussing such topics as suicide, prayer, or what it is to be a Christian.

Variety show is successful

The Concert Choir presented "Give My Regards to Broadway," a show that featured hit songs from broadway musicals. The entire Choir performed and there were several solos, duets, and ensembles. The ArGuys-n-Gals performed several songs and a satire skit of TV's "Name That Tune."

The choir also represented Madison-Grant in the Madison County Choral Festival. Along with singing a featured number, the choir also performed in the combined county choir.

Marching band receives first place rating

The Madison-Grant band was quite successful this year. They received a first place rating in the ISMA district contest and earned the right to advance to state competition. A first place award was also awarded in the Summitville Parade. The band performed in two concerts this year, the Christmas Concert and the Bicentennial Spectacular. Selling fruitcakes was the main project, which was quite successful.

Poms entertain Community

A variety of shows from a 50's dance to the story of Bethlehem was performed by this year's pom pon corp, sponsored by Mrs. McIntosh. The girls sold Christmas candles for new outfits and props, which enabled them to make close to $1,000.00.

Besides marching at basketball and football half times, the corp also performed with the band at the Fairmount Sidewalk Daze and the Summitville Lions Club parades and the ISMA District and State Contests,

An attraction was added to our home basketball games. The flag of our nation was presented by a color guard between games. With the help of sharp routines, the poms provided entertainment for the home games.

Cheerleaders add spirit

M-G's three sets of cheerleaders, sponsored by Miss Newland, were quite helpful in bringing spirit to all of the football and basketball games. Freshmen cheerleaders were chosen by the Freshman class and the B-team and Varsity were elected by the cheerblock.

During Fairmount Sidewalk Daze, the Varsity cheerleaders had a bake sale and a raffle as money making projects, Booster pins were also sold by the girls.

Cheerblocks help support team

Boys' booster block was started again this year. Sponsored by Mr. Smith, the boys and their Argyll mascott, alias Chip Mitchener, made our home basketball games a lot more exciting.

The girls' cheerblock, sponsored by Mrs. Gallo, was active at all the basketball games. They were dressed fittingly in their black bibs.

The two groups contributed to the "peppiness" and school spirit.

Staff gets job done

The ne Obliviscaris and Clan Courier staffs worked hard to meet the many deadlines required for making available to the student body interesting newspapers and a memory-saturated yearbook. Many jobs, such as the selling of yearbook ads, distributing the underclassmen's ID cards, and taking the organization pictures, were also required by the staff members.

Each of the staff members had an assigned job and his own responsibility to get the job done. Many hours were spent in the staff room to get the year-books and newspapers out on time. There was a lot more to the yearbook and newspaper than just words and pictures. Planning and organization were behind the scene.

Competitiveness followed us through all weather, in all aspects of life. But special emphasis was placed on competitiveness in sports. Smiles and tears were abundant products of many athletic victories and defeats. We, both girls and guys, actually bled sweat and shed tears through competitive confrontations every day.

Managers work unnoticed

Managers often go without sufficient recognition for the work they do during a season. Long and hard hours are spent each practice, before and after, doing their duties. These jobs include washing and folding uniforms, keeping records, taping injuries, or anything else that may seem small to other people, but it is a big help to the athletic teams of Madison-Grant.

A lot of individuals think managing is an easy way to earn a varsity letter, but managers put in more hours and just as much work as many of the players.

Managers are often overlooked but are just as important to a team's success as coaches and players themselves.

Athletes appreciate the managers work, because they realize what sports would be like without them.

Lettermen aid baseball team

The 1975 Argyll Baseball team, aided by eleven returning lettermen, turned in a better season then in the previous years.

The Argylls finished 0-6 in the CIC, 1-4 in the county, and were runnerups in the Eastbrook sectional to Marion Giants.

Their season record was 7-16 in regular season and 2-2 in the tournament play.

Second baseman, Bud Garmon, after laying down a bunt, squeezes safely into first.

Girls run wild in second year

The Madison-Grant girls' track team under Coach Carol Melson finished the season with a 7-1 record, getting beaten only by Marion. Relatively new in the Argyll sports program, the Argyllettes showed they're in the running by ending up with the best record of any varsity sport.

Coach Melson had a total of ten individuals and two relay teams qualify for sectional. The Argyllettes finished fifth in the sectional scoring and advanced two individuals to regional status, Jane Spencer in the hurdles and Anna Justus in the mile. Anna kept on running to a first in the regional and an eighth in the state finals, where she led for two laps. Anna went undefeated in the season. Next year beating Marion will be the teams goal according to Coach Melson.

Individuals key team efforts

Coach Jim Miller's Argyll cindermen ended with a season record of 5-4 and captured the Elwood Relays title. Once again individual performance was prominent with five school records being set.

Brian Kirkwood broke his previous mark in the mile with a time of 4:27.8. Other records set were: 880, Kurt Kohlmorgen, time of 2:00.2; mile relay, Kohlmorgen, Coleman, Kirkwood, and Goodpasture, time of 3:31.9; 880 relay, Buroker, Maine, Heiny, and Elsworth, time of 1:33.7; and Ken Kurtz in the discus event with a distance of 143 feet 4 inches. The Argylls placed third in the C.I.C. meet, second in the Grant County meet, and seventh in the Marion Relays.

Girls tennis looks ahead

The 1975-76 girls' tennis team ended its season a little behind in the set with a score of 3 wins to 5 losses. Going undefeated on the year was the team of Tina Root and Judy Petit with a 7-0 record. The team of Teri Fox and Jerri Terhune ended up with a 6-1 mark.

Leeanna Hiatt was number one on the roster followed by Kathy Young, Aprille Rigsbee, Paige Woodruff, and tied for fifth, Patti Moss, and Teresa Gosnell.

Coach Susan Engle's most valuable player was Teri Fox for the year. Coach Engle is looking forward to next year with all her letterwinners returning.

Linksmen have rough season

Coach Charles Wright's golf team had a disappointing year ending up with a 1-7 record. Many matches ended with a close score, but the Argylls seemed doomed to lose. The linksmen fought a hard battle but could not get out of the rough.

Losing four golfers to graduation, including number one man Doug Carey, Coach Wright will start rebuilding down at Yule next spring.

Boys net poor season

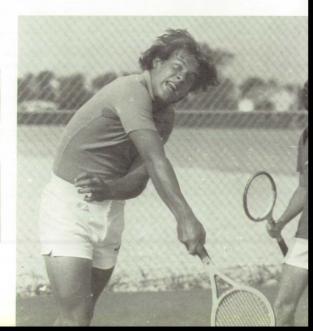

Coach Duane Leatherman's boys' tennis team ended on a sour note with a 3-8 record. Led by Kevin Cook the Netters had Phil McLane and Chip Terhune in second and third spots respectively. The Argylls fought hard in the season, but came up short most of the time. In sectional play the Argylls looked good against Columbia City beating them by a score of 5-0, but then tragedy struck against Wabash with the Argylls getting beaten to the tune of 1-4. Losing most of his boys to graduation, Coach Leatherman will be looking at his B-team for his new varsity squad.

Harriers start rebuilding team

The Madison-Grant cross country team led by Coach Jim Stone recorded a 4-5 season record in what might have been considered a rebuilding year.

M-G lost key runners, Brian Kirkwood, Kurt Kohlmorgen, and Dave Coleman, by graduation. Those returning lettermen were Mike Goodpasture, Jerry LaShure, and Ron Avery. Goodpasture led all M-G runners by capturing six first place finishes, while finishing third in the county and C.I.C. meets respectively.

The harriers made good showings in their larger meets placing third in the C.I.C., second in the county, and eleventh in the sectional.

M-G reserves finished second in the county and ended on the year with a season record of 3-5. The reserves were paced by Rick Rodarte and Brent Duncan.

Girls capture tourney and sectional crowns

Capturing the Eastbrook Invitational and winning the Elwood Sectional highlighted the 1975 volleyball season.

Coach Charlotte Denny led the girls to the best season ever at Madison-Grant compiling an 18-4 season record.

M-G had little trouble winning the Eastbrook Invitational by overpowering Mississinewa, Southwood and Eastbrook by scores of 15-1, 15-9; 15-3, 15-3; and 15-5, 15-11; respectively.

The Argylls headed into sectional play with a 15-3 record and had little trouble getting into the finals beating Mississinewa 15-3, 15-4 and Marion 15-6, 15-6. In the championship game the Tipton Blue Devils were the victims of a 15-4, 15-10 defeat and the Argylls were on their way to the Regional.

In the opening game of the Regional M-G literally blew the Blackford Bruins off the court, 15-2, 15-4, before losing to state power Ft. Wayne Wayne in the semi-finals 2-15, 2-15.

The team was lead by Senior Nicki Miller and Juniors Mel Pearce and "The Hustler" Leeanna Hiatt.

The reserve team finished the season with a fine 11-3 record.

Gridders face strong competitors

Football, being the contact sport it is, requires one to be well disciplined and in excellent condition. Conditioning started in early June and continued throughout the entire summer until football started in August.

Once the season had started the Argylls jumped to a 3-1 mid-season record beating Eastbrook 8-0, Mississinewa 28-6, and Union City 24-8. M-G's only loss of the first half of the season was to county rival Oak-Hill 26-6.

The fifth game of the season was Homecoming with the Argylls playing host to state power Peru, losing by a score of 48-0.

M-G ended the season with a 3-7 record for the year and 0-6 in the C.I.C.

Five Argylls received county honors. They were Kevin Webb-Interior Lineman, Stan Davis-Quarterback, Kim Elsworth-Running Back, Tim Davis-Linebacker, and Tim Maine-Defensive Secondary.

Freshmen show ability

The freshmen football team ended their season in fine fashion by handing their last four opponents a shut-out.

The young Argylls, led by Coaches Tom Bennett and Jeff Summers, compiled an impressive 5-1-1 season record. The frosh beat such teams as Oak-Hill and Elwood.

M-G's only loss of the season was to Blackford County losing by a margin of 28-14. The Argylls tied the Peru Tigers 0-0 in their season opener.

This year the reserve team consisted of freshmen and those varsity players who saw little action on Friday nights. The B-team finished the season with a 0-4 record.

Girl's Basketball debut

Under the leadership of Miss Cindy Newland, the newly formed girls' basketball team marched to an incredible 5-7 season record.

After losing the first three games of the season, the girls bounced back to win four of their last seven games.

In the sectional the Argylls were runners-up to the Marion Giants, losing by a score of 51-40. On the way to the title game the Argyll girls eliminated Eastbrook by downing the Panthers 51-47.

The Argyll team was led in the scoring category by junior Sharon Berry. Sharon not only lead the team but also lead the county in scoring, averaging 15 points per game.

Sharon Berry and Leanna Hiatt were selected to be members of the All Sectional team.

The girls' B-team finished strong with an 8-2 record in the season.

Argyll cagers regain possession of County Keg

The Madison-Grant Argyll basketball team lost some close games by one or two points in the early going, losing six out of the first nine games. However, the Argylls bounced back to win seven of their last ten games in the regular season, ending with a respectable 11-10 record.

In the process of winning their last seven of ten games, the Argyll cagers reacquired the County Keg from Oak Hill.

The Argyll scoring attack was led by junior Stan Davis. Stan averaged 17.2 points per game.

Tim Maine was the top rebounder pulling down an average of 7.5 rebounds per game.

B-team shows potential; freshmen anticipate good future

Ted Harbit, coach of Madison-Grant's B-team, led his reserve to an impressive 13-7 season record.

In the county tourney the Argylls sidelined Mississinewa by heading off the Indians 33-32. In the semi-final round the Argylls lost a close one to the Bennett Trojans by a score of 32-36.

Scott Overdorf paced the little Argylls in scoring, averaging 10.4 points per game.

Gary Bright led the team in rebounding, averaging 7.1 rebounds a game.

The Argyll reserve outscored their opponents by a 42.8-38.9 average.

Coach Jeff Summers led his team of Argyll yearlings to a 10-5 record for the 1975-76 season. The Freshmen B-team ended up with a season record of 4-7.

John Zirkle led the team in both rebounding and scoring. John pulled down an average of 7.7 rebounds per game while putting an average of 9.3 points per game on the board.

The freshmen basketball team outscored their opponents by a 45.1-36.7 average.

Disappointment experienced

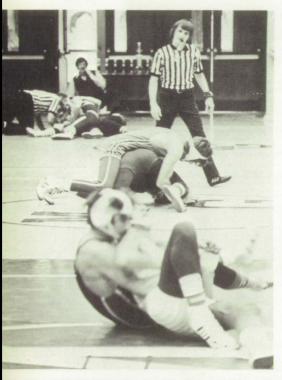

The grapplers had a disappointing season this year, losing every match.

The young Argylls had only one senior Doug Petit, 155 lbs., who advanced to the finals in the sectional, county, and CIC tournaments. Pettit's overall record was 15 and 6.

Rob Hoddup, 112 lbs, won the County tourney which is the first time a freshman has achieved this at M-G. Hoddup also placed third in the sectional, finishing with an overall record of 13 and 3.

Many freshmen and sophomores were on the varsity roster which will give next year's team a young but experienced team.

The Grapplers were 0 and 7 for the season.

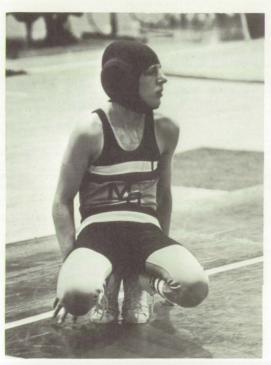

Argylls wrestlers have a tough time in their invitational tourney.

B-Team Grapplers: D. Davis, M. Hubbard, S. Niverson, J. Justus. (Not pictured: Shorty Little)

Young team shows ability

Gymnastics' season this year was a rebuilding one. Many inexperienced girls came out for the team this year and faced the task of learning new and more difficult routines. However, the girls still were tough competition.

Levels of competition are beginning, intermediate, and optional. The skills in each level become more difficult, with optional level being the toughest. Uneven parallel bars, floor exercise, balance beam, and vaulting are the four events that the girls perform in.

Kent Underwood, Dennis Bunch, and Carole Inglis were managers for this years' gymnastics season.

We've Come A Long Way

I can feel the sweat drip down my back and my heart pulsate through my skin. My hands writhe a few times. The intensity of the crowd is great and I feel as if every eye is on my form.

A buzzer sounds and each one of my teammates moves to her position. The ball goes up and suddenly I find it is in my possession. Which way do I go? Can I set up a play? Where are my teammates? Why in the world am I out here in front of all of these people? I'm going to make a fool of myself!

Then after those first few seconds of doubt pass, I remember, and everything that we worked so hard for falls into place. This moment is the moment the team prepared for. My teammates are suddenly where they are supposed to be. The crowd has vanished into the woodwork of the bleachers. Air rushes in and out of my lungs in a rhythmic pattern and my adrenalin flows thick into my veins. No matter if we win or lose (it helps a lot to win), the team is there together striving and no one wants to let the rest down. We do the best we can as individuals, as well as a team, to have the form that shows the poise that we have worked hard to achieve each day in practices. We're proud, too, not only because we're an M-G team, but because we're a Girls' M-G team and we've come a long way. The best thing (although, I won't be here to see it at it's peak, but I was here to help build it), is that the competition can only get better along with the players. We have a competitive drive in each one of us waiting to get out. All we need is encouragement to break down the wall; we'll supply the hard work and effort.

We have to learn a lot to catch up with the guys because they've had a headstart; but we're intelligent, eager, and gutsy. We're not equal now, but we'll catch up and when we do, we're not going to ease off. That's because the stamina we have that's brought us this far is going to carry us right through. We want to win because we don't want to lose.

A MAN'S WORLD OF COMPETITION

Tonight is the last home ballgame I will ever play and as I sit in the locker room I am overcome with fear. The tension begins to grow with each second that passes by. My stomach knots as my heart pounds harder and harder with each thump.

At last, the time comes to get dressed, and I can't find my whites. My heart sinks to the floor as I go into a surge of panic. The next minute I find my whites on my rack. I had left them there the night before to be washed by the managers. As I begin to get dressed, I feel weak, as if I have been drained of my energy. The weak feeling is further intensified as I put on my heavy equipment.

As I've finished dressing, I'm starting to heavily perspire and the sweat is rolling down my face. In hopes of cooling off and finding some relaxation, I proceed to the adjacent room. Once I've reached the room I lie down on the cold floor only to find restlessness.

Time grows short as game time grows near. Finally the coach enters the room and says, "Get your helmets on, boys, and get out there and stretch out so we can get done what needs to be done." My butterflies begin to flutter as I stand in line to exit through the door and out in front of the crowd. With each stride I take, I feel as though ten more pounds have been added to my feet.

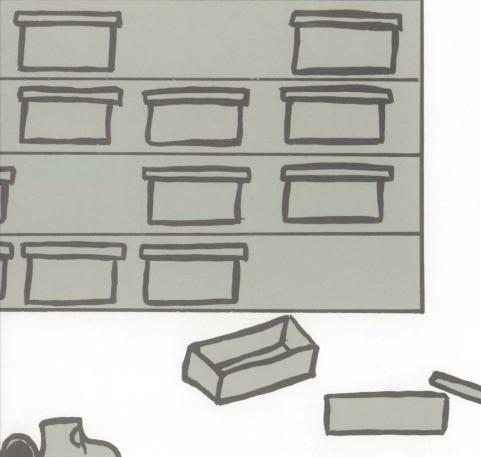

After exertion beyond compare, I have reached my destiny; suddenly I find myself in an entirely different atmosphere, as if I have stepped into a new world. All my thoughts and emotions are focused directly on the game. My fears are replaced by enthusiasm. It is here; I find myself in a man's world of competition—competition that is too rugged for a member of the every-day-run-off-the-mill opposite sex—competition in which only a man can survive.

community support was very prominent in every aspect of M-C participation. When we needed been, the public stended its full cooperation with each new acceptance of the compelled to solicit the compelled to solicit the community for aid. The doors were continually open. Many smiles and tears were exchanged daily in Fairmount's and Summitville's commerce. We, being members of this community, were proud to be a part of the trade of smiles and tears.

Teaching is a 'piece of cake' to retiring Mrs. Wood.

The ne Obliviscaris Staff would like to recognize Mrs. Florence Wood for her outstanding contribution to the M-G faculty. She is retiring this year after nineteen years of Home Economics teaching.

Mrs. Wood said that the biggest changes in education have not been with education itself, but with the students. She cited that the biggest change in Home Economics over the past nineteen years has been that prepared and partly-prepared foods, such as cake mixes and instant puddings, are being used in class work. "We never would have dreamed of it," she said, referring to her earlier years of teaching.

When asked her plans after retirement, Mrs. Wood said that she and her husband plan to travel. Some of the places they plan to visit are Texas, Mexico, Hawaii, possibly Alaska, and some National parks and monuments.

Congratulations, Mrs. Wood, on completing an admirable career.

We have lived through one more year of school. Also with us lived our cherished love and admiration, accepted hate and jealousy, and smiles and tears. School ended. Seniors picked up their report cards for the last time. Green underclassmen suddenly became cool and calm upperclassmen in the wink of an eye. The classroom and hallway were turned off. Windows and doors were shut and locked. The deserted, barren badlands that we called school were empty of people except for the custodians. The noise and hustle were gone. Yes, school ended. But the emotions we experienced. some of which are vaguely mirrored by these pages, didn't just stop there. We created them. In us they existed and will continue for the rest of our lives. These very same

Smiles and Tears

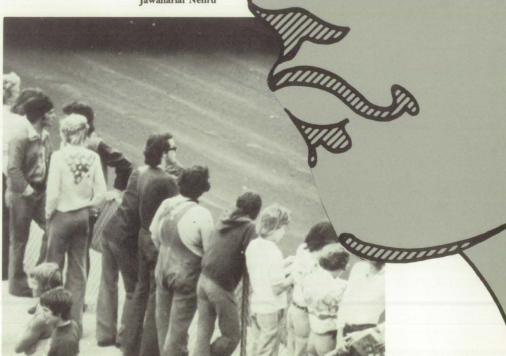

Loneliness can be sad, but sometimes it's good to be by yourself in order to sit down and think things out.

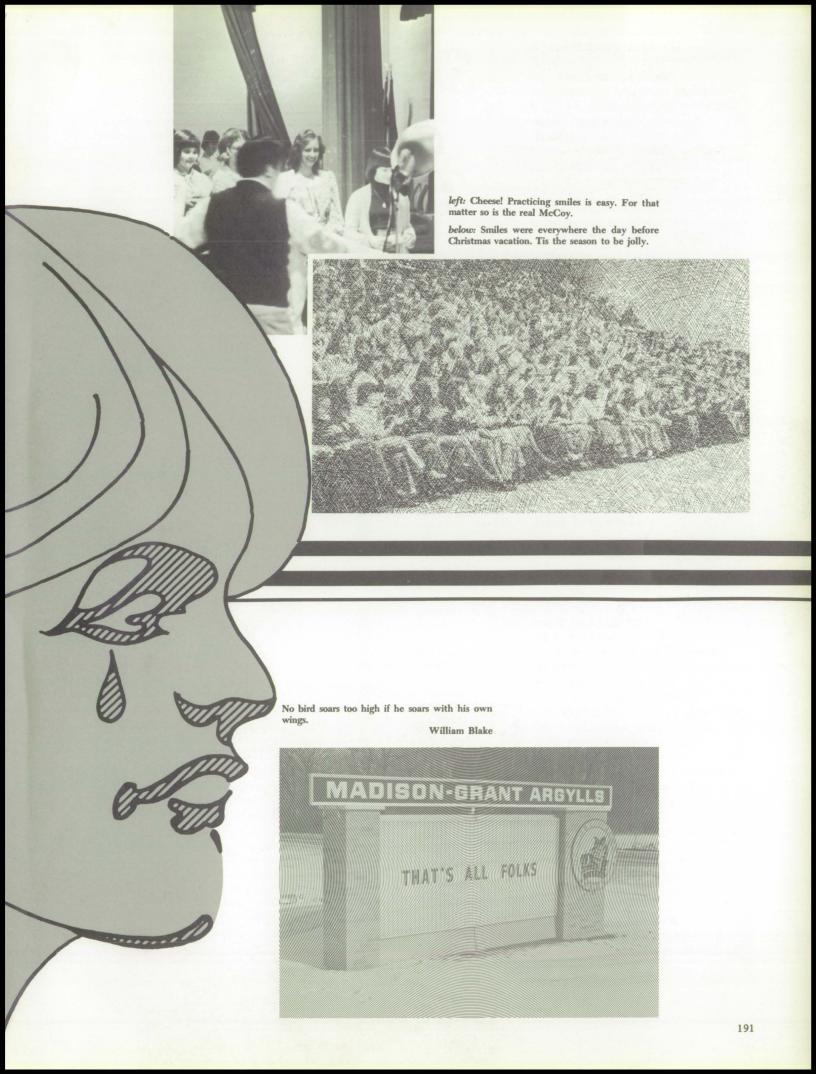

smiles and tears definitely could not be recreated by the use of mere words and photographs. The pictures used are worth a thousand words, but only to those who take the time to remember the great multitude of feelings they actually experienced. You really had to be there to believe it. Has school really ceased? For this year of course it has. Next year Madison-Grant High School will be the same. Oh, there will be some different faces but the knowledge to be gained will be the same and for the most part the faculty will be the same. Is this the end or the beginning? Think it over, then smile or maybe shed a tear.

Time is not measured by the passing of the years, but by what one does, what one feels, and what one achieves.

Producing a yearbook demands a lot. There is much more behind the cover than just the pictures and the words. We want to give a special thanks to the principal problem-quincher, Mrs. Linda Bragg. We couldn't have done it without her and her knowledge of the mechanics involved with producing a yearbook. We can't possibly express enough thanks for all of the time, patience, and understanding she has contributed.

Thanks, Mrs. Bragg. You're swell!

We didn't just make up "smiles and tears." They really happened whether the realization is made now or not. Although smiles and tears played a major role in our four years here, high school for us was a mixture of many challenges and trials. These challenges and trials were often more welcomed than not. We realize the importance of conquering obstacles no matter how minute or complicated they appear to be. We know that one who overcomes, or even has the opportunity to face these obstacles, augments his total being.
